Timing is everything

The first 12 hours of a calf's life can determine the success or failure throughout their lives. It is vital that a calf receive colostrum and supplements during this timeframe.

When a calf is born, it has an immune system that is not ready to deal with the infections it may encounter. The only protection that calves have for the first few weeks comes from the passive immunity received from its mother. It is vital to ensure that the calf has the ability to deal with these issues during the first few months of life and provide them with a solid platform on which to start.

“Easy to Give”

EPIC[®] CALF NEWBORN comes in a preloaded, single-use oral syringe.
